DIVERSITY

White, Grey and Black is an intriguing combo

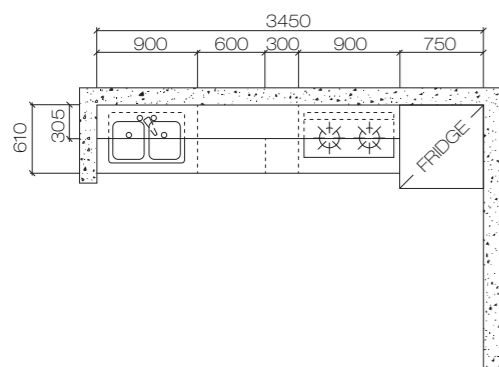

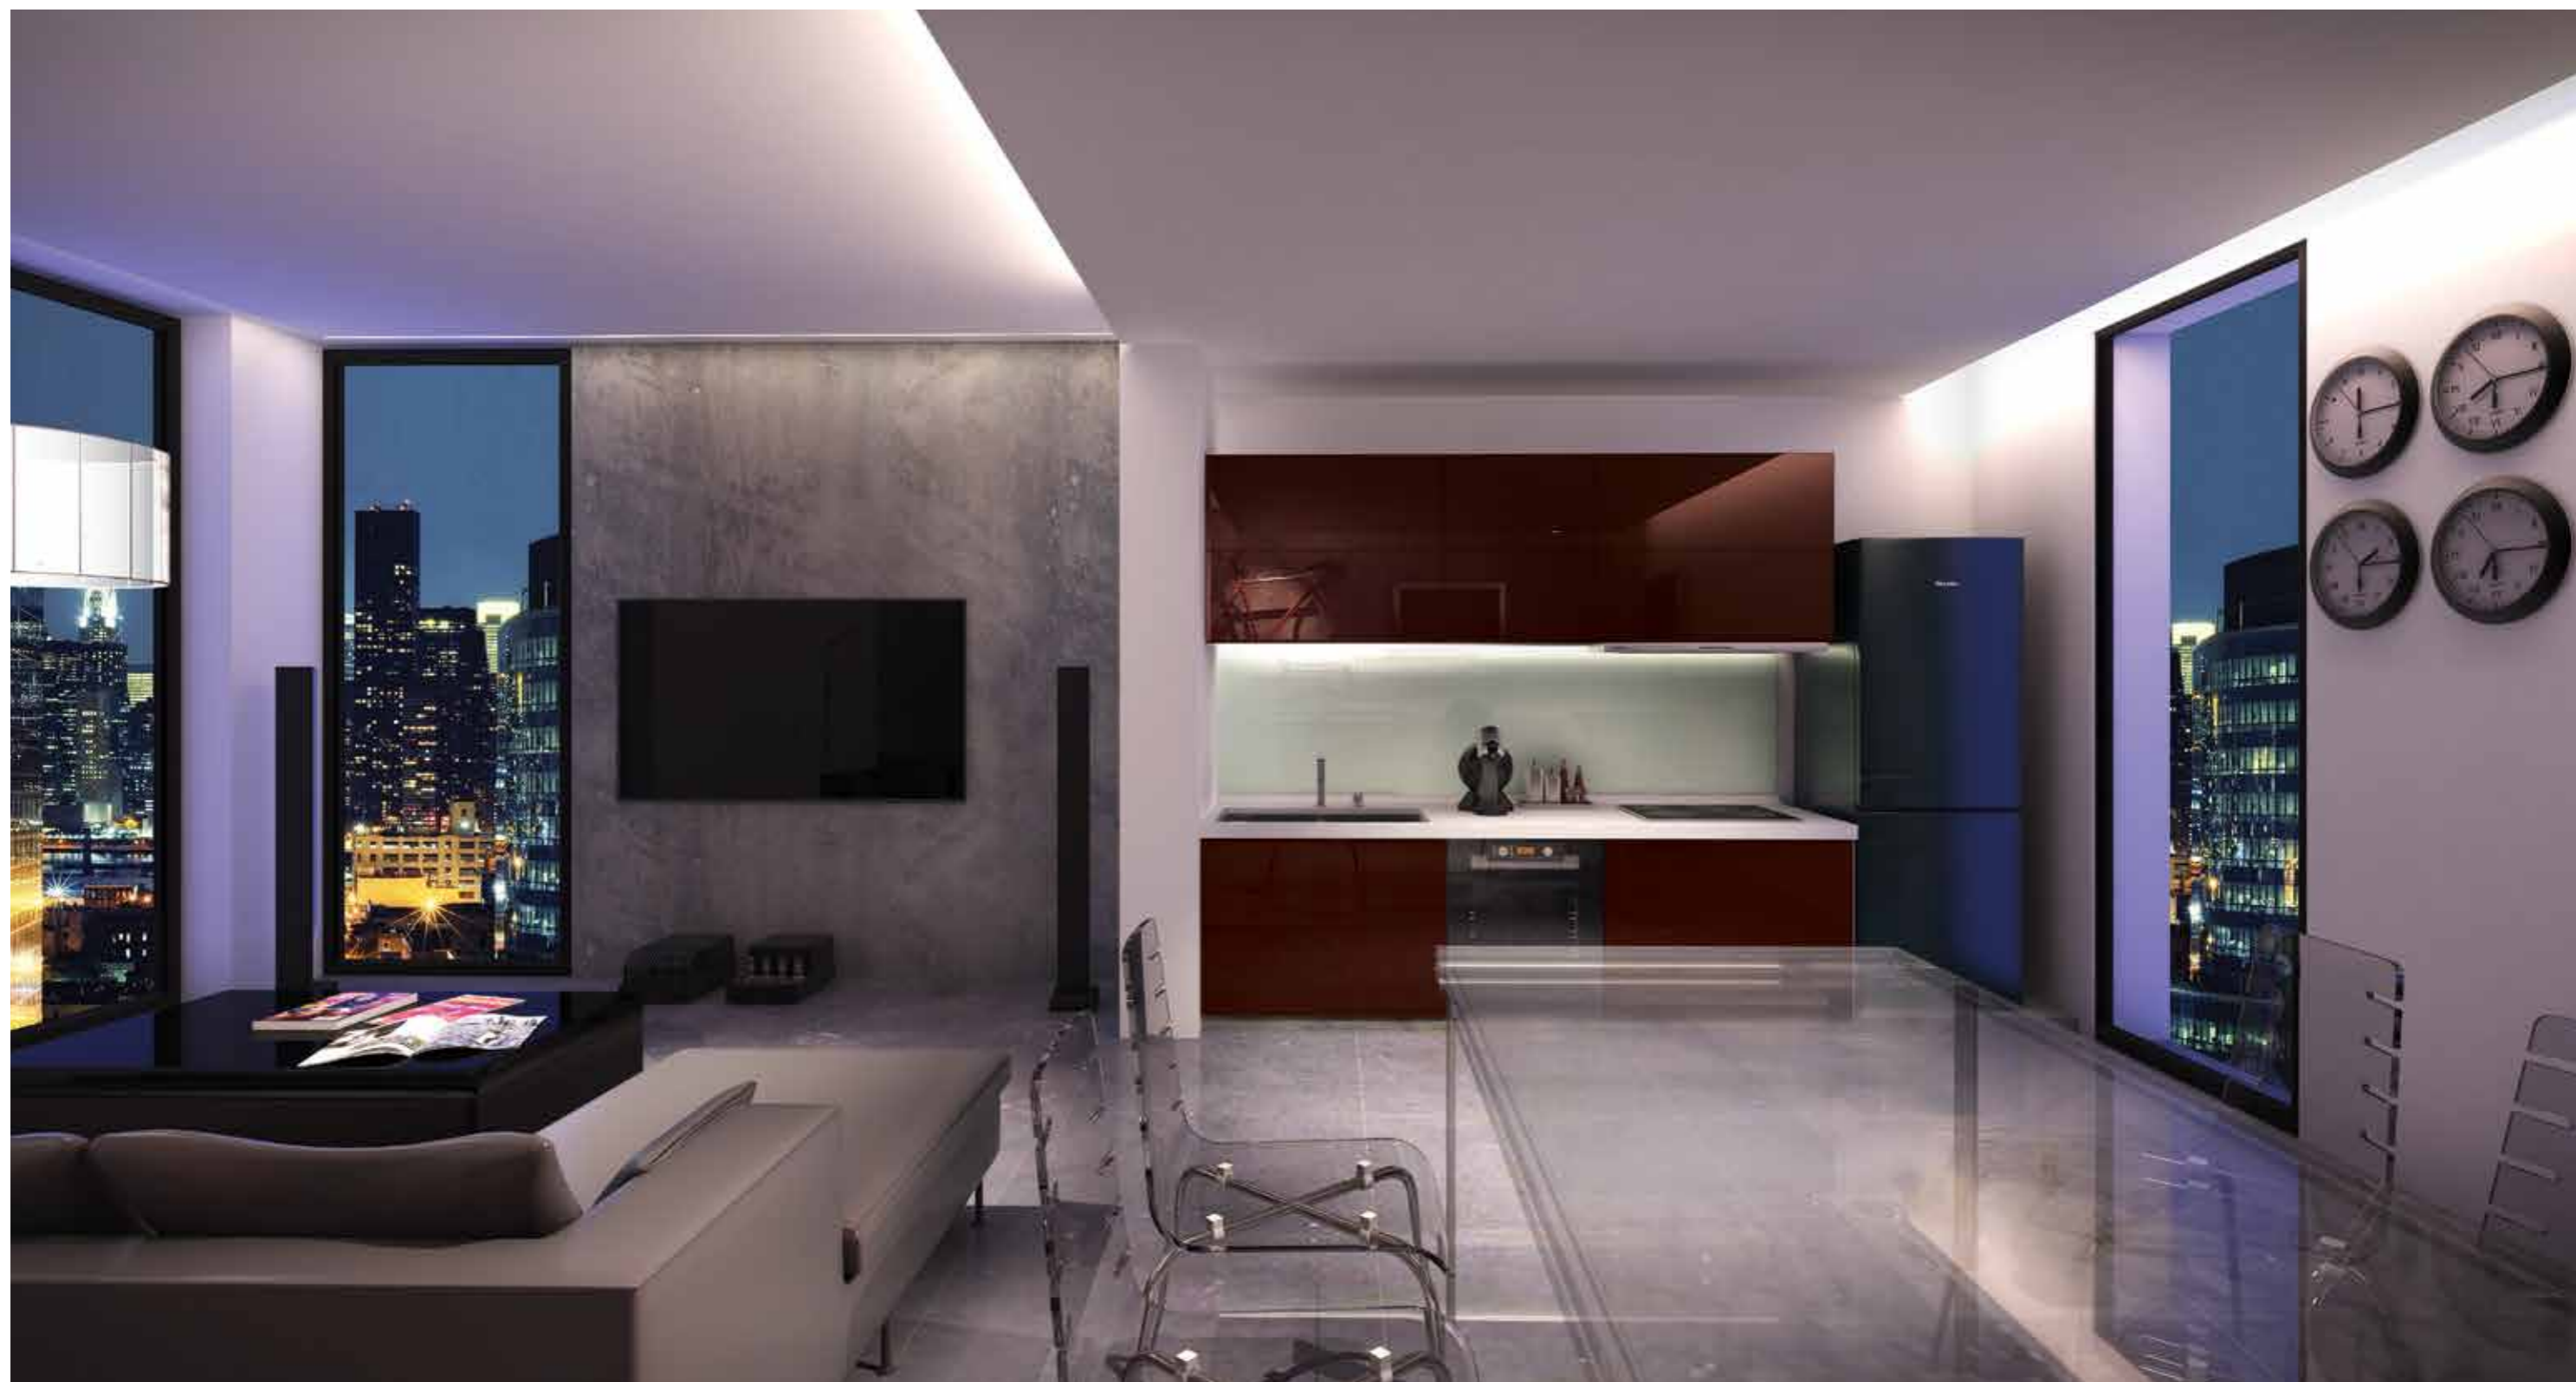

A sleek, spacious kitchen in a home mixes shades of the trio to excellent effect and injects the contemporary space with a shot of glamour.

Choosing a stronger colour for bottom cabinets will anchor the room without overpowering it. Doing so also can be a thoughtful and less intimidating way to incorporate color into this function-driven room.

In this kitchen, the black and grey base cabinets make appliances stand out less and look even better, while the bright white upper cabinets blend into the wall, makes for a more visually open space, giving the impression of a larger room.

The cabinets' interior and door frames are given facelifts with high quality powder coating and fashioned in matte texture to the touch. In addition, the door flaps are made of glass, which in turn create a sense of spaciousness even in the tiniest kitchen space.
